

ANTHURIUMS

FACTS

Grow Zone: 10 - 11

Family: Araceae (Pothoideae)

Genus: Anthurium

Native To: Central & South America, Caribbean

Mature Height: 16" - 24"

Mature Width: 16" - 24"

Type: Tropical epiphyte

Growth Habit: Compact, upright

Foliage: Green, veined, heart-shaped

Flowers: Waxy red, white, purple or pink bracts around spathe, 2" - 3" wide

Propagation: Division, Cuttings

Why We Love Anthuriums:

Also known as Flamingo Lily or Flamingo Flower, these showy cousins of peace lilies make great easy-care houseplants. A. andraeanum is the most popular variety: once their spathes bloom with bright red bracts, they can stay in bloom for a very long time. You can have red flowers in your home all the time!

LIGHT

Bright, indirect light.

The more light it receives, the more blooms it will produce.

Avoid direct sun as it may burn the foliage.

WATER

Allow the top half of soil to dry out before watering.

Avoid overwatering, Anthurium roots are susceptible to root rot.

SOIL

Well-draining soil. An orchid mix with additional sand and peat works well.

Feed once a month during spring and summer with a liquid indoor fertilizer.

FYI: While these plants are considered low-maintenance, you'll get the best color and lasting blooms if you find the indirect light, breathable soil & high humidity they love.

INTERESTING VARIETIES:

- A. andraeanum (Flamingo lily)
- A. scherzerianum (Pigtail Plant)
- A. andraeanum 'Purple Miss Jane'
- A. andraeanum 'Simba'
- A. bonplandii subsp. guayanum (Cobra Anthurium)
- A. superbum
- A. radicans
- A. watermaliense x pachyneurium ('Water Dragon')
- A. plowmanii 'Ruffles'

Call & visit for more tips:

(301) 218-4769

2410 N Crain Hwy, Bowie, MD, 20716

patuxentnursery.com